Paul Stellrecht - Re: Fwd: St. Pete Pier question(s)

From: India Williams
To: Danielson, Robert
Date: 6/23/2014 3:03 PM
Subject: Re: Fwd: St. Pete Pier question(s)
CC: Flintom, David; Stellrecht, Paul
Attachments: Williams, India.vcf

We're bundling all the comments to send to the PWG chair and members. I'm trying to contact the chair for some guidance. He is out of town through 6/27.

India Williams
City Development Administration
City of St. Petersburg
175 Fifth Street North
St. Petersburg, FL 33701
727-892-5370
India.Williams@stpete.org

>>> Robert Danielson 6/23/2014 2:47 PM >>>
I received this from my name being on the Web site. Not sure if India the chair would like to respond?

>>> Greg Mccarthy <gmccarthy96@yahoo.com> 6/19/2014 9:31 PM >>>
Dear Ma'am or Sir,

Why is it that when We,The People want something but a politician doesn't want something,the politician kills at and the discussion is completely ended,as with what happened to high-speed rail which we voted on several times.

Why is it that when a politician wants something which the people don't really care for,the discussion goes on endlessly like the St. Pete. pier? Why is it ONLY now that the people are even being asked for major input about it since what the politicians wanted was rejected,and also after very much discussion and needlessly spending money designing something which was rejected so badly by voters,meaning The Lens design?

Why is it that only now the people are being asked for soooo much input about The Pier when the end of the Pier was known to be coming so long ago and not much input was really asked from the public by officials beyond the 2 or 3 designs they were looking at?

No,I'm not in St. Pete. limits. I'm in Clearwater and I see the same stupid ideas/news which seems to be never ending about that Pier. This is a festering sore,not has become,not could be...it IS a festering sore.

The way this situation has been handled is quite perplexing in my opinion. Every single person who has been a part of the decision process up to this point seriously needs to yank their skull out of their colon.

Gregory McCarthy